of evidence, it becomes a theory. In science a theory doesn't mean a guess or a hunch. It means a well-supported explanation for some aspect of the natural world that incorporates facts, laws, observations and testable hypotheses. In the case of human evolution, Charles Darwin noted that humans and apes share many biological features (click 1).

mechanism by which evolution, or change in populations occurs, is through natural selection. Evolution occurs with a population because individuals have different sets of these traits that affect their ability to survive and reproduce. For example, some individuals may be better at finding food, hiding from predators, or attracting mates.

The theory of evolution remains one of the most useful theories in biology because it explains many questions and observations. Some questions that can be answered by evolution. Why do so many different animals have the same structures, the arm bones in a human are the same bones as a flipper in a whale?

Evolution Notes

Evolution has been described as "fact and theory"; "fact, not theory"; "only a theory, not a fact"; "multiple theories, not fact"; and "neither fact, nor theory." [2] The disagreements among these statements, however, have more to do with the meaning of words than the substantial issues and this controversy is discussed below.

Darwin's Theory of Evolution is the widely held notion that all life is related and has descended from a common ancestor: the birds and the bananas, the fishes and the flowers -- all related. Darwin's general theory presumes the development of life from non-life and stresses a purely naturalistic (undirected) "descent with modification".
